IS AMERICA TURNING BACK TO GOD AN INSURMOUNTABLE TASK?

It is a question many faithful believers are quietly asking: Has America gone too far? Is turning this nation back to God now an impossible task?

Everywhere we look, we see evidence of spiritual decline. Church attendance has dropped. Biblical literacy has faded. What once was common moral ground is now widely contested. Christians increasingly find themselves misunderstood, marginalized, or even opposed for holding to long-established truths. The culture seems to be moving rapidly – and not always in a direction that honors the Lord.

And yet...this is not the first time God's people have faced such a moment.

Throughout Scripture, revival has never come when conditions were ideal. It has always come when things seemed darkest. Israel turned back to the Lord in seasons of captivity, not comfort (Judges 3:9; 2 Chronicles 7:14). The early church flourished not under favor, but under pressure (Acts 8:1–4). God has a long history of doing His greatest work when His people feel weakest (2 Corinthians 12:9).

The real question is not whether America is capable of turning back to God – but whether God's people are willing to be faithful in the generation in which He has placed them (Esther 4:14; Psalm 78:7).

God has not asked us to save the nation. He has asked us to be obedient – to be salt and light (Matthew 5:13–16), to speak the truth in love (Ephesians 4:15), to stand when it is easier to be silent (Acts 4:19–20), to pray when answers seem slow (Luke 18:1), to love when the world is angry (Matthew 5:44), and to obey when obedience carries a cost (John 14:15).

Turning a nation is not the work of a movement. It is the work of millions of faithful believers quietly living out the Gospel – in their homes, churches, workplaces, and communities (Deuteronomy 6:6–7; Titus 2:7–8).

History reminds us that revival is rarely loud at first. It begins with repentance, prayer, humility, and faithfulness – often unseen, often uncelebrated, but never unnoticed by God (James 4:8–10; Hebrews 6:10).

The challenges before us are real. The opposition is serious. The legal and cultural pressures are increasing (2 Timothy 3:1–5). That is why the work of defending the freedom of the Church and encouraging believers to stand firm is more critical than ever (Philippians 1:27; Jude 1:3). But difficulty does not mean defeat. Resistance does not mean retreat. And darkness does not mean God is absent (John 1:5).

The Gospel is still the power of God unto salvation (Romans 1:16). The Word of God is still living and active (Hebrews 4:12). Prayer is still effective (James 5:16). And God is still sovereign (Psalm 115:3).

So is turning America back to God an insurmountable task?

Not if we remember Who does the turning.

Our calling is not to measure the size of the mountain – but to trust the God who moves mountains (Matthew 17:20; Zechariah 4:6).

Let us be found faithful in this hour (1 Corinthians 4:2). Let us pray without ceasing (1 Thessalonians 5:17). Let us stand without fear (Joshua 1:9). Let us love without compromise (Romans 12:9). And let us believe – not because circumstances are favorable, but because God is faithful (Lamentations 3:22–23).

The future of America does not rest on politics, policies, or personalities. It rests on whether God's people will continue to walk humbly with Him, obey His Word, and trust Him with the outcome (Micah 6:8; Proverbs 3:5–6).

And that has never been an insurmountable task.

HOW THE CHRISTIAN LAW ASSOCIATION IS STANDING WITH YOU

The call to faithfulness in this generation is not theoretical – it is deeply practical. Pastors are navigating regulations. Churches are facing zoning questions. Schools are working through licensing requirements. Families are seeking clarity. Ministries are responding to legal and cultural pressures that were almost unheard of a generation ago.

And none of God’s people should have to face those challenges alone.

Every day, The Christian Law Association exists for one purpose: to come alongside those who are serving the Lord and help remove the legal burdens that hinder the work of the Gospel. Whether it is answering a pastor’s urgent question, defending a church’s right to operate, guiding a school through compliance, or protecting a ministry from unjust interference, our team is at work – quietly, faithfully, and prayerfully.

“Bear ye one another’s burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ” (Galatians 6:2).

We cannot turn a nation by ourselves. But we can stand with those who are faithfully serving in it. We can help protect the freedom to preach, teach, gather, disciple, and live out the Christian faith without fear.

“Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free” (Galatians 5:1).

When you call, write, or pray for CLA, you are not just supporting an organization – you are strengthening the hands of pastors, teachers, missionaries, and families across the country who are seeking to be obedient in their communities.

We are honored to stand with you. We are committed to continue the work. And by God’s grace, together we will remain faithful in this generation.

“And let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not” (Galatians 6:9).

Thank you for standing with us – and for standing for Him.

When we receive letters like this here at CLA, we are thankful for the opportunity to serve Christians across our nation.

Thank you for helping me with a letter to my company’s HR department back in July of this year. I did not want to sign a form stating that I would use different gender pronouns as it’s a sin to lie. You helped me protect my Christian rights when I needed it and I’m so appreciative.

UNDERSTANDING WORKERS’ COMPENSATION REQUIREMENTS

When you are dealing with church finances, workers’ compensation is an extremely important area to consider. In certain situations, it can be a great help to employees who are injured on the job. On the other hand, it can be so expensive that it can cripple some ministries.

The laws about workers’ compensation vary from state to state. If you have questions about the best policies for your ministry to adopt or if you have questions about navigating the entire workers’ compensation system, please contact our offices. Our experienced attorneys are happy to partner with you to help you know the best way to proceed.

EMPLOYMENT CLASSIFICATION & PAYROLL RULES

The distinction between employees and independent contractors is under increasing scrutiny. Misclassification can trigger audits, fines, and back-pay liability. Ministries should review their payroll practices annually to ensure pastors, staff, interns, and contractors are properly classified and documented under current federal and state standards.

RELIGIOUS LIBERTY PROTECTIONS IN PUBLIC SPACES

New policies and court decisions continue to shape how religious speech and activities are treated in schools, parks, city facilities, and online platforms. Ministries should stay informed about their rights to speak, assemble, and operate without discrimination — and not assume silence is required when the law still protects Biblical expression.

CHILD SAFETY POLICIES & REPORTING LAWS

States continue to update mandatory reporting laws and child-protection requirements for churches, schools, and youth programs. Ministries should ensure background checks, training, and reporting procedures are current — and that all volunteers and staff understand their legal responsibilities when concerns arise.

DATA PRIVACY & ONLINE MINISTRY COMPLIANCE

As ministries increasingly use websites, online giving, livestreaming, and databases, privacy and data-security laws are expanding. Churches should ensure donor data, student records, and counseling information are properly protected and that online platforms comply with applicable privacy and disclosure rules.

FACILITY USE & ZONING COMPLIANCE

Local governments continue to revise zoning, parking, and occupancy rules that affect churches and ministries. Even long-standing facilities can suddenly be “out of compliance” when ordinances change. Ministries should periodically confirm that their current use, building capacity, and parking plans still align with local requirements — and seek counsel immediately if they receive a notice or complaint.
